LANCASTER, PA. FRIDAY, AUGUST 24, 1883.

Price Two Cents.

FLINN & BRENNEMAN, TO PROPERTY OWNERS AND PAINTERS.

As a business transaction would you be willing to pay one dollar for an article you could purchase for ninety cents? We are the agents for Lancaster and vicinity for Wadsworth, Martinez & Longman's Pure Prepared Paints.
And we claim that they are the best and cheapest paints in America. And we don't make this assertion and leave it unsupported. Paint one-half of any surface or one-half of any building with this paint and the other half with strictly pure White Lead and Linseed Oil, or any other mixed paints in this country, and if the part painted with this paint does not cost ten per cent. less than for paint used, we will make no charge for our paint. And further, any building that has been painted with this paint that is not satisfactory to the owner, and not remaining so for a proper term of years, we will repaint at our own expense with White Lead and Linseed Oil or any other paint he may select. As many of the prepared paints are adulterated with benzine and water we make this liberal offer. We will pay one thousand dollars for any benzine or water found in any original package of WADSWORTH, MARTINEZ & LONGMAN'S PURE PREPARED PAINTS.

CHOLERA!

PROF. DARBYS
Prophylactic Fluid.

The Most Powerful Antiseptic Known.

WILL PREVENT THE CHOLERA.

IT DESTROYS THE GERMS OF DISEASE.

It is a fact established by science that many diseases are introduced by purification, which reproduces its self and propagates the disease in ever widening circles.

These diseases generate contagion and fill the air with death. Such is that dread Terror.

Asiatic Cholera,

which is now devastating the East and advancing on its mission of death rapidly to warms our shores.

Other diseases of the same sort are Diphtheria, Typhoid Fever, Scarlet Fever, Cholera, Measles, Yellow Fever, Brucella, etc., all of these generate contagion and fill the air with death.

When used as a Prophylactic, it drives away the germs of disease and death.

When used as a Remedy, it drives away the germs of disease and death.

HUMORS OF WAR.

CAPT. DERBY'S REVOLVING MULE.

John Fenwick's Invention Still on File in the War Department--A Tornado in the West.

"The last time I was in Washington," said a veteran army officer to the American correspondent, "those fellows up at the War Department were in quite a quandary of effort looking to a change in their uniforms, and there was as great a commotion as the one that existed during President Pierce's administration, when they talked of changing the styles of uniforms in the army. That event was attended by some very amusing incidents, but the most laughable was the part taken in it by the late Capt. Derby, or John Fenwick, as he was known in journalistic and literary circles. He was a lieutenant at the time and stationed in California. He was secretary of the war, issued a general invitation to officers of the army who were skillful draughtsmen to send in suggestions for the new uniform which it had been decided to adopt. One such invitation was sent to each officer. Lieutenant Derby was very ready with his pen--a really ingenious artist. In reply he sent to the War Department, not exactly a design for a new uniform, but a peculiar addition to the old uniform, the amendment consisting merely of a ring attached to the neck of the trousers of each private soldier. Each officer was to carry, in his pocket, a sword, a long pole with a hook in the end, like a shepherd's crook. The pole and ring enabled officers to keep privates from running away in battle. Fugitives could be easily caught by it and brought back; stragglers could be kept in line. Moreover, the ring would be very useful in the cavalry service to fasten soldiers to the saddle to prevent them from falling off, and in the artillery service the rings were to be used for draught purposes in the absence of mules. The specifications were accompanied by the most grotesque pictures, representing officers hauling back cowardly recruits by the serviceable ring, cavalry severely fastened to the tops of their steeds by the same device, and artillerymen, mounted on cannon, drawing them through narrow defiles or up an acclivity inaccessible to mules. On another sheet of Bristol board was an illustration in gaudy colors of "Derby's Rotary Mule Howitzer," as it was called in the written inscription, to wit: "Upon the back of a young and vigilant mule strap a mountain howitzer, the muzzle pointing towards the tail. A similar piece of ordnance is fastened with iron bands under the animal's abdomen, the muzzle pointing towards the head. The front. There are four gunners--two to each piece--and a 'persuader,' as he is called, whose business it is to persuade the mule to stand firm and not retreat by stuffing him with oats, after each discharge, with a quantity of sawdust. When Indians or other legitimate game appear in view, the mule is, by a crank movement on the tail, brought to position. It doesn't make any difference which way the mule faces--and here is where my patent comes in--the gun is always pointing towards the front. At the command "Fire!" the top howitzer is discharged. The recoil throws the mule on his back, bringing the second gun into position. This is discharged, which sends the mule on his feet again, when the gunners swab out the mule's throat with hay and reload."

"The illustrations which accompanied these directions--in brown, red, blue and gold, and still on file in the War Department--represented the rotary mule in seven different attitudes, looking contented at the muzzle, the tail, the head, the rear, the front, the side, and the back. The mule was to be the butt of ridicule on account of it all your life. Better file the suggestions of the crook and ring and the lively rotary mule and say nothing." And he did it. For Derby subsequently became an inmate of an insane asylum and later died by suicide.

THE CYCLONE TERRORS.

How a Western Tornado Comes Up.

A cloud, black as the raven's wing, appeared in the west. Suddenly it split, and between the two black trails expanded a brilliant white light. The color was green--gray--yellow, and it darkened the sun so it became a twilight. The carpenter had gathered together with us on the porch.

"This must be a hailstorm," one of them said, "but I don't see any hail."

"Disasters," suddenly the cleft widened between the two black cloud wings, and the upper one came with a terrible splash, flurrying back toward us. "Let us walk in," I said. "It seems as if we, too, should get a taste of it." We went in, and our parlor looked quite dark. We had scarcely locked the door before we heard the roaring of the storm coming.

In a moment we were surrounded by a white cloud, and the wind and rain lashed the house, which groaned and shivered. It was not rain, it was furious torrents of water mixed with heavy hail, which poured down from heaven. The storm tried to burst open the door, but five men pressed against it with all their might. The wall seemed to give way, and stood in a bow-sawed shape, as in convulsions. I felt a tightening of my heart every time the building seemed to be lifted from the ground and dropped down again.

Twice we had these terrible shocks; then in a moment, however, the furniture scattered around among lumber and shavings, whether alive or dead nobody could tell.

A table and a staircase came flying through the air; some men met them and pushed them away, so they did not kill my wife and children. A bit of wall and roof whirled round; here it was impossible to remain. We crept and crawled and ran for our lives down to the forest. As we found each other there we were only six, a friend of ours, a farmer, had one of the small girls in his arms, who was another, and one of my sons clung to me. But where were the rest of the children?

I had myself seen one of the carpenters run with my third little girl--but the ELDEST AND YOUNGEST BOY? KILLED, PERHAPS, OR LYING MUTILATED AMONG THE RUINS, AND IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE TO LOOK FOR THEM.

The hurricane would have swept us away as soon as we had moved from the wood. The only thing to do was to protect the children to us and give them no much shelter as we could with our broader backs. The rain and the hail lashed us, the oak shrubs were blown flat to the ground and their limbs struck our heads and shoulders like whips.

MELLIPOLOUS MURMURS.

Fashion and Pleasures Among the Mountaineers and Along the Sea.

The surf meetings at Ocean Grove were largely attended, but, sad to relate, there was more flirting than praying, and the great crowd forgot all about the speaker when a steamer went by, and waved their handkerchiefs as though they were participating in a picnic rather than in the solemn ceremony of worship.

A writer in describing one kind of cogito says: "A great belle she undoubtedly was which did not make her woman particularly fond of her. Men all admired her, and elbowed and fought for a place at her side in the ball room. A good many of them were in love with her, and yet few liked her. She was admirable, she was lovely, but she was distinctly unlikable."

In a private letter from the White Mountains, a lady writer mentions her vacation enjoyments. "A modest room in a village house, with a seat (rather pinched for room) as a modest table, with only six kinds of cake for tea." City people who yearn for a change enjoy such luxuries.

The princess of Sagan, a mighty leader of French society, has declared her disapproval of American girls, and says that she will not enter the Grand Façade fold if she can keep them out. The dictum does not seem to have crushed any one thus far.

One hundred and five dresses in the portion of dry goods a queen of beauty has with her at Long Branch. If she had gone to an inland resort, fifty dresses would have been the allotted portion.

The ladies of Saratoga, many of whose dainty summer toilettes have been trunk-bound by stress of weather, have rebelled against old-fashioned styles, and full dress is in vogue on many occasions, when lately more comfortable styles prevailed.

Hair dressing is becoming more elaborate. No longer are the meagre coils in the nap of the neck popular, but plaits, wigs, ringlets, and curls, and loose twists of hair high up are to be seen everywhere.

The season at Saratoga is now fully up to the best previous records, and the hotel men are doing a lively business if not vigorous praying for a long continuance of hot weather.

GRIME AND CALANITY.

Recently Reported Murders Most Fatal.

Littleton Hatfield and Oliver Hatfield, father and son, charged with the murder of Moses Young, in Brunswick county, Virginia, have been discharged from custody. They had been tried, convicted and sentenced to hang, but were granted a new trial, which resulted in their acquittal. For some unknown reason they were re-arrested and remanded to jail--Major Ashington, colored, was shot and killed by George Gordian, also colored, at Bradwell, Pennsylvania, yesterday morning, in a quarrel caused by Gordian teasing a pet bear owned by Ashton--Dr. B. F. Hudson, of Hoosick Falls, New York, was shot and perhaps mortally wounded yesterday morning by Charles Osterhoudt, in refusing to obey a demand by the latter to go and see his wife. Osterhoudt's wife alleges improper conduct against the doctor, which the latter denies.--At Isadora, Missouri, on Wednesday, a constable and posse attempted to take William Andrews from a respectable house, and were fired upon by Andrews. Dr. J. C. Rex, one of the posse, was killed. Andrews finally gave himself up.--At Provo, Utah, on Wednesday night, Silas Alfred, a watchman, shot at a tramp, but missed him and killed Miss Ellen Lewis, a "bride of seven weeks."

Yellow Fever and Other Calamities.

Surgeon Ono died yesterday at the Pensacola navy yard of yellow fever. One death from the fever occurred in the village of Woolsey and two "suspicious cases" were reported in Worcester. A quarantine against Pensacola has been established at Mobile.

Passed Assistant Surgeon Ginteras, now on the U. S. steamer Swatara, at New York, has volunteered for duty at the Pensacola navy yard. A number of fugitives from Pensacola passed through Atlanta yesterday. They reported that 500 people left Pensacola on Monday.

It was reported from Portland, Maine, last night that fourteen persons were drowned yesterday at Wells. No particulars were given and telegraph office at Wells is closed.

To His Honor Frank.

The united pipe line company has issued a circular through its president to the oil exchanges throughout the country, proposing "that the several exchanges appoint gaugers of their own to accompany the united pipe line gaugers on their annual inspection, in order to verify the figures given to the oil trade by the company, and to inspect its books." The net stock held by the united pipe lines, according to the statement made on the 10th, was 33,995,765 barrels. The gauging of oil tanks will be accomplished on September 1, and the oil exchange will appoint on their own behalf 91 gaugers, 16 inspectors and a number of clerks to accompany the united pipe line officials.

A Copy of Rogues.

A telegram was received at Norfolk, Va., yesterday from Philadelphia, asking the authorities to hold A. M. Sykes, who shot his father on Tuesday evening. It is said Sykes is wanted in Chicago to answer a charge of burglary. He had a considerable amount of money and jewelry when arrested.

Think he has Discovered a Comet.

Prof. Lewis Swift, director of the Warner observatory at Rochester, discovered what appeared to be a comet on Tuesday evening. He discovered the celestial object through a small glass, but before he had time to adjust the great telescope clouds obscured his view. Later observations were prevented by the moon. The apparent comet is situated "in the ankle of Andromeda."

TWELVE HOURS AFTER.

Mr. Henry Barker, the Tea and Coffee merchant, 30 Houston Street, New Haven, Conn., writes on May 16, 1883: "It is with feelings of gratitude, and a desire to benefit my fellow-men that I write you these few lines as testimony to the value of the greatest of all medicines. Eight years have been a sufferer from kidney disorder and inflammation of the bladder. Sometimes when passing water the pains were something terrible, a scalding, burning sensation, with retention of urine, with sharp pains in the loins, and sharp, extending clear to the back of my head, tended to make life miserable. I have been treated by a number of our best physicians, and have used every number of proprietary medicines, all to no avail, obtaining no relief. How long I would have continued in this way I do not know; in fact I despaired of getting relief, until a neighbor, who had been very much benefited by the use of Hunt's Remedy, advised me to try it; and, although I had no faith that it would reach my case, yet as he spoke so highly of its great merits I decided to give it a trial, and its use has been attended with the very best possible results. Twelve hours after taking the first dose I experienced relief. I continued on in its use until I had used five bottles, when all the pains had vanished, my otherwise good health returned, and I am free from all pains, and am a well man. I am confident my cure has resulted from the use of Hunt's Remedy, and that alone.

"What has done for me I am positive it will do for others. You are at liberty to use my name or this letter in any manner you see fit."

HURT BY A FALL.

When only a boy some fifteen years old I was hurt quite badly by a fall, and severely injured my back and kidneys, and was doctor ed by our best physicians, and tried many remedies, and they all failed, until Hunt's Remedy was recommended to me by a friend. I had used it here in Manchester with the greatest success. I was advised to try it, and I found that I was completely cured, and I can not over-estimate the good Hunt's Remedy has done for me, and my health is now as good as ever. I can not say too much for you choice. Respectfully yours,

MEDICAL.

A CLEAR HEAD.

"One year ago I was induced to use AYE'S PILLS as a remedy for indigestion. Constipation and headache, from which I had long been a great sufferer. Coming with a dose of five pills, I found their action easy, and obtained prompt relief. In continuing their use, a single pill taken after dinner, were first used by me. I have since used AYE'S PILLS have kept my system regular and my head clear, and benefited me more than all the medicines ever before tried. Every person suffering with indigestion should use them. 192 State St., Chicago, June 6, 1882.

For all diseases of the stomach and bowels, try AYE'S PILLS.
